Trolley and crime problems discussed

A group of citizens met last week with Lemon Grove Sheriff's Department officers and San Diego Trolley officials to discuss the relationship between the trolley and crime in the Lemon Grove area.

The group of of six citizens had all been burglarized within the last year, but only two cases were proven directly related to the trolley.

"We have about seven cases, total, that we can attribute to the trolley," said Lieutenant Lynn Ziegler.

Captain Jim Roach added that there has always been crime in the area and that the current problems do not constitute a crime spree. "Statistically the crime rate is the same as before the trolley," he said, "it's just another way to get here and they'd come without it."

The trolley staff has been working closely with the Sheriff's Department, said Roach, "and I think we've done a pretty good job."

Hellen Runner,whose home near the Massachusetts Trolley Station was burglarized, said, "I don't object to the trolley at all. I welcome the trolley. I just want to know what I can do to protect myself."

One of the best ways for homeowners to protect themselves is through a Neighborhood Watch program, said Ziegler. "You need to meet your neighbors so you can tell who belongs in the neighborhood and who doesn't. People who live in neighborhoods with large numbers of retired people are fortunate because they're home during the day to see and report things," she added.

People concerned about leaving their homes empty while on vacation can call the Sheriff's Department and ask them to perform a vacation check. "Uniformed officers will check your house almost on a daily basis," Ziegler said.

Roach said there is no way to totally protect your property, but locks on doors and windows are good deterrents. "The key is to make it as difficult as possible," he said. "A burglar may pass your house by if it takes additional effort and work."

Bernice Nelson, organizer of the meeting, had her home burglarized and the thief was caught on the trolley with her belongings. "A trolley officer spotted our VCR in his bag," said Nelson.

The trolley's Chief of Security, C.R. Jessop, said trolley officers are private sector officers and therefore have certain limitations. "Our major function is to act as deterrents," he said, "we make citizen's arrests, but basically the only difference between our officers and citizens is that our officers are trained."

Vice President/Director of Transportation, Peter Tereschuck said, "When we see a problem we focus in on the area. We tell our officers to be conspicuous as a warning to potential criminals."

"We increased our force by one officer about a month ago and we have enhanced our security for the holidays," he said. "There will be a uniformed guard at all major park and ride facilities from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. during the holiday season."

Roach said it is important for people to remember that it is not illegal for someone to come to Lemon Grove on the trolley even if they look unsavory. "People who are not on legitimate business are asked to leave," but , he added, there is no stereotypical look for a burglar.

Unique pancake breakfasts slated

The Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station in conjunction with several concerned business leaders are holding two breakfasts, Friday December 8th and Saturday the 9th. The "unique" aspect arises out of the station's concern for the little town of San Felipe in Baja California, Mexico.

Many of our local men and women in green have noticed how primitive the police are in San Felipe upon their visits. As we head south in increasing numbers, the town swells. Lacking a police car handicaps the little tourist mecca. A dependable vehicle is greatly needed, so our sheriffs hope to share the proceeds in order to purchase a used San Diego police car and donate it to their contemporaries south of the border. The remaining half of all proceeds will be used to help those in Lemon Grove who might be having a hard time seeing the joy in the upcoming season.

Tickets, available at the Sheriff's Station, the Chamber of Commerce office or at the breakfasts, are $3.00 for adults, $2.00 each for those 60 and over, or 12 and under. The breakfasts will be held in the Sheriff's Station, 3240 Main Street. For more information call 463-3136.

Woman's Club Vogue Section recognized

Officers of the Lemon Grove Woman's Club Vogue Section received a City Proclamation at last week's City Council Meeting. The proclamation was a thank you to the Woman's Club for their many hours of services to their fire department. The Club's Vogue Section has supported and helped the Lemon Grove Fire Department for the past 14 years by providing cookies for Fire Prevention Week and by purchasing many kitchen items and utensils for use by the station crews.

Tips offered to deter trolley crimes

By Lloyd Donahoo

While the East County extension of the trolley has been hailed by most, it is not without its problems. Homeowners near the station are complaining of trolley-related robberies and some riders have fallen prey to pickpockets. Riders of the trolley should be aware of the criminal elements waiting to deprive riders, especially seniors, of their wallets and other valuables.

While there are some security personnel riding the trolleys and at some stations, the petty crimes perpetrated by pickpockets seem to be on the increase. Riders can do much to stamp out this public nuisance, by knowing and understanding the method of operation used by the criminal against the unsuspecting victim and by following a few simple rules.

One of the slickest schemes is for pickpockets to work in pairs. One in front of and the other behind the victim as they try to board the trolley or bus. If you are a couple trying to board, the pickpocket will try to separate you from each other, using every courtesy to allow the woman to board first, then quickly stepping in between, thus allowing the partner in crime to be positioned in back of the victim, ready to lift the wallet during distractions caused by the front man.

A state of confusion and a confrontation are caused by the front man, who will use body contact and verbal excuses such as, "I gotta get off... gotta get rid of this cigarette... let me out!" etc. if the victim moves right or left, the pick pocket moves with him blocking his every move, all of the time using body contact. With the victim thus distracted, the partner in crime lifts the wallet and is gone. The following are some things you can do to make sure this does not happen to you:

Be prepared by not carrying money or valuables in the normal places on your person. Front and rear pockets are easily accessible to the professional pickpocket. Stay clear of any body contact if possible. Try and be the last person or persons to board. The trolley will not move as long as you have your thumb on the door button. Upon approaching the station, take a good look at those waiting there and note, if you can, if there are security people in evidence. Always be aware of your surroundings and environment.

Consider using a money belt which can be concealed in a safe place under clothing or worn around the calf of the leg. These items are available locally.

Make sure your car is properly secured against theft if you leave it in a station parking lot.

You can help fight back and do much to minimize trolley problems by immediately contacting the trolley security department at 239-1535 and reporting irregularities or problems.

OMBAC seeks to donate toys to area charities

The 400 members of the Old Mission Beach Athletic Club (OMBAC) are very happy to be living in San Diego, America's Finest City.

As a way of showing the city how they feel, the Club would like to give the City of San Diego a Christmas gift. They plan to distribute 800 brand new toys, free of charge, to a worthy children's group.

But the Old Mission Beach Athletic Club needs community members' help in finding the groups that can use their donations. To be eligible for these toys, contact OMBAC in writing stating the group you represent, why you need the toys and to whom they will be given.

The address is:

OMBAC
3530 Bear Street
San Diego, CA 92103.

For further information, call OMBAC Chairman Tony Haddad at 295-4474 or President Chuck Millenbah at 483-8021.

Giant sand sculpture of the Holy Land to be created at Seaport Village for the holidays

Seaport Village will host the creation of a giant sand sculpture depicting the Holy Land in celebration of the holiday season through Sunday, December 10th, according to Lowell Taylor, Seaport Village marketing director. "We are very excited to bring this fascinating and beautiful creation, which will be on display through mid-January, to San Diego residents and visitors," said Taylor. "The sand sculpture will be only one of the many events and activities taking place at Seaport Village this holiday season."

The 17-foot high sand sculpture is being created by Gerry Kirk Sand Sculptors International and will cover an area of 40 x 50 feet. Four to six professional sand sculptors will work daily with nearly 200 tons of sand in creating the interpretation, which is expected to take approximately 650 total man-hours to complete.

"The fascinating part of a sand sculpture is watching the creation come to life—hour by hour, day by day—until you have a one-of-a-kind work of art," said Gerry Kirk, professional sand sculptor. "From one minute to the next, the creation changes as it is evolved from the sand."

Gerry Kirk Sand Sculptors International is recognized around the world as the leading innovator in sand sculpting. He has created some of his most memorable sculptures in San Diego for the Convention & Visitors Bureau, the Super Bowl and the Soviet Arts Festival. He has also participated in the Imperial Beach Sand Castle Competition and many local corporate events, tradeshows and conventions.

Kirk and his Sand Sculptors International team have received three world sand sculpting championships and six national titles and have sculpted their way into the Guiness Book of World Records by creating the world's largest, tallest and most visited sand sculptures. They have also created world-class events and projects in Japan, Republic of China, Canada, Singapore and most recently for Walt Disney Studios.

The Holy Land sand sculpture, sponsored by G. Gray David Career Consultants and Seaport Village, will be created and displayed adjacent to the Broadway Flying Horses Carousel in the West Plaza of Seaport Village until mid-January. The sculpture will also have dramatic lighting surrounding it for night viewing. For more information, contact the Seaport Village office at 235-6568.

'Harlem Nights'

I hope a few executives at Paramount Pictures are ashamed. Not only because they released this slow, predictable, racist, disgusting, offensive, very unfunny piece of trash, but also because they allowed themselves to be manipulated by Eddie Murphy. So worried were they about upsetting their million-dollar man, that producers gave Murphy complete creative control as well as five separate listings in the opening credits. As "Harlem Nights" progressed, it became obvious that he could not handle the responsibility.

The tragedy of "Harlem Nights" could have been avoided, for the concept of the storyline is endearing: the roaring '20's as experienced by two black nightclub owners, Ray (Richard Pryor) and Quick (Eddie Murphy), who must outwit white mob boss Bugsy Calhoun (Michael Lerner) and a crooked cop (Danny Aiello) in order to stay in business. Unfortunately, Murphy, who wrote the screenplay and served as director, destroyed the idea by loading the film up with stupid jokes, boring semi-drama and vulgarity the likes of which even Sam Kinison has never seen.

I think that's what bothered me the most, too—the vulgarity. Maybe it's because I have this idea about what the '20's have come to represent—style and charm, especially class. Eddie Murphy has no class. Now, don't get me wrong. I'm no naive Pollyanna who thinks cursing is an invention of the '80's, but I refuse to belive that people, especially black people as Murphy portrays them, cannot express themselves without always using profanity. And if I'm wrong, if every single black person in the roaring '20's was madly in love with that "F-word" that rhymes with 'duck,' there is still no reason why I should want to hear it for two hours straight. "Harlem Nights," from start to finish, is completely disgusting.

As for Murphy's acting ability, he has proven himself less than an accomplished performer. The character of Quick makes huge transitions from smart alec to psychopath, but Murphy seems content to float along on one level of intensity and never reveals any depth. In some scenes, he does attempt to recapture the boyish charm of Axel Foley, his character in the "Beverly Hills Cop" series, but he comes off as though he is mindlessly rambling, perhaps even making it up as he goes. Who knows, maybe he was.

The supporting acting isn't much better, either. Redd Foxx, basically recreates Fred Sanford of "Sanford & Son," the usually-vibrant Danny Aiello seems stifled, Jasmine Guy, of T.V.'s "A Different World," is emotionless and Arsenio Hall appears as a blubbering idiot.

However, even the worst films usually have their one moment of relief, and "Harlem Nights" has its in the character played by Della Reese. She's a madam (and a huge one at that) who takes on Murphy in a fist fight after he suggests that she has been stealing money. I liked the scene so much because she kicks him around and basically thrashes the life out of him.

Thank you, Della! It needed to be done.

Space Center offers new service

With the help of a new phone number, San Diegans can learn what to look for each evening in the night sky. The Reuben H. fleet Space Theater and Science Center has created a special two-minute, taped phone message with weekly sky information that is accessible by calling 239-NITE.

This year-round service begins today and is offered at no charge. Messages by the Space Theater's resident astronomer Dennis Mammana will usually describe the locations of visible planets and stars, explain current phase of the moon, share tidbits about topics like moon illusion and why stars twinkle, in addition to noting viewing conditions. The 239-NITE number was conceived because of the many phone questions received by the Space Theater each week.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Some time ago I did a column regarding the U.S. Congress and its position in our democracy. The material was somewhat apologetic at the time since the national media had joined the communist hierarchy in blaming our Congress for most of the world's problems.

But the communists were wrong! The problem is what our Congress is doing to "We, the People."

The latest wrongdoing, and one that makes the point, is the Keating savings and loan scandal. That, among others, indicates that governmental greed can eventually destroy the keystone of American freedom - the Constitution with its Bill of Rights.

A major point in our Constitution, the first article, makes the Senate and House equal in authority, as what one does reflects upon the other. Together the two Houses of Congress enact all legislation. The House originates revenue bills. However the Senate's advice and consent is necessary. Together they can override Presidential vetoes. But individually they can provide for themselves - such things as honorariums (Congressional shakedowns) and wages. The House gave up honorariums, opting instead for a healthy raise. The Senate gave itself an embarrassingly small raise, but kept the shakedown privilege. Apparently, it is far more lucrative.

Innocent taxpayers will feel the full burden of the Keating/Lincoln Savings and Loan scandal next year. While other savings and loan failures will add to the cost to the taxpayers.

Because of aid given Keating alone by several U.S. Senators, taxpayers will pickup the tab for some $2 - 3 billion. Reckoning time of the tax will come next year.

We view Keating as the prime suspect because he dangled the bait before some senators who have a reputation for being a little greedy. Senate suspects include Cranston (D-CA), Glenn (D-OH), McCain (R-AZ), DeConcini (D-AZ), Riegle (D-MI), and Pashayan (D-CA).

Also under investigation or being questioned are yet-to-be-named federal regulators and Alan Greenspan, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. Regard for our Constitution should demand that miscreants, whether or not elected officials, face a criminal court for wrongdoings. The Constitution is the lifeblood of our democracy.

We are agitated with greedy lawmakers from both Houses of Congress because they have been given broad authority to remain independent, but in the light of recent involvements, respect for both the Senate and the House is being dissipated.

I re-examined the first article in our Constitution and nowhere could I find any suggestion that Congressmen were privileged to rule by bribery - and that's what is indicated in the Lincoln S & L caper.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

Padres seem to stack deck against McKeon

Gridders are still scrambling in the trenches trying to decide who makes the playoffs in the National Football League, a sport that stretches the 1989 season right into next February, but even before NFL moguls lock the vault on current campaign profits, the 1990 sporting season is getting underway.

First up is Baseball's annual winter meetings opening Saturday in Nashville, Tenn. The minor and major league bigwigs get together for serious discussions on Monday, but trade talk begins even before room keys are picked up.

The Padres will likely field their usual collection of neophyte negotiators - a sad collection of legal beagles, paper pushers and bean counters - while their genius of their talent judging department has been strangely reduced to an advisory role.

Owner Joan Kroc has steadfastly maintained the Padres will remain a force in the National League during her stewardship.

Yet, her most experienced - one could say her only talent judge, has been left on the bench during recent Padre signing misadventures. It is almost as if Chub Feeney were still in charge.

Jack McKeon has proven his loyalty and dedication both on the field and in the front office. He built the Kroc's Padres investment from also runs into serious contenders. Then he put his professional career on the line and went down on the field to cajole this wide ranging group of talented athletes to play together like a team.

McKeon is the only Padre executive who ever laced on a pair of spikes, threw a ball in anger or took a turn at bat.

To all other Padre executives, a plate is what you eat from, a ball is a dance and spike is what you do to the punch.

In this day of free agency, and in the shadow of the owner's adjudicated conspiracy, it seems it would be prudent to sign available top quality players at the current market rate and pledge to win on the field and stay out of the courtroom.

When he was the voice Joan Kroc heeded, Chub told McKeon to talk things up, but get his approval before any moves.

One wonders which of the bean counters and/or legal beagles has Joan's ear these days. So far this talent-less front office troop has blown the early signing of Mark Davis, insulted American League MVP free agent Robin Yount and made much sought after pitcher Mark Langston wonder who is running the San Diego baseball shop.

Baseball people know Jack McKeon. They know his ability and his honesty. They meet with him as an equal, as a valued member of the lodge.

Players treat him with the same respect. They know him as a man who has paid his dues. A brother of the game who's word has always been good enough to take to the bank for direct deposit.

In the world of business, paper shufflers, bean counters, and legal beagles are the backbone of any organization. Across our great country, they make up 90 percent of all the non-productive employees on any payroll.

When it comes to talent, real success comes to those who let professionals run the show. Just sign the checks, Joan. Please check your supernumeraries and let Jack get on with his job.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

A house is not always a home

With the scarcity and high cost of decent housing today, which also commands an average house payment of nearly $1,000 per month, the present day economy scares me. Of course, everything is relative as I was earning only $20 per week when we purchased our first house back in the early forties. Now average weekly salaries are more than we paid for the house.

A young married couple starting out today has a gargantuan nut to crack to live with respect and try to keep up with the Jones.'

The high cost of living in these present times compared to the time we bought our first house is really unbelievable.

After graduating from high school, I worked in a factory for a short time, just long enough for the foreman to push a heavy assembly table over on my foot and put me on disability for about six months. Because of a big toe that was permanently damaged, I was awarded a few hundred dollars settlement.

With that, my future wife and I purchased our first house. The house had two bedrooms, living room, dining room and kitchen. No bathroom or any other modern conveniences. The price with easy terms was right, so we bought it.

The total price was $700 with only $50 down and $15 per month. Of course, there was a lot to be done to the place to bring it up to even low standards. To make the disability money stretch, we had to "beg, borrow or steal" the materials for the remodeling.

We jacked the little cottage up about two feet and proceeded to dig a full basement under it using a horse and scoop to remove the dirt. I got a whole load of concrete paving blocks free just for the hauling, which we used for the basement walls. The railroad had left some huge bridge timbers on a friend's property who was anxious to have them gone. He let me take them for just one dollar to make it legal and prove that I didn't steal them.

The local saw mill cut the timbers up into 2X lumber for only $10 by me doing all the hauling. From those old bridge timbers, I had more than enough lumber for all new joists under the house, all the remodeling, and even had some left over to sell. We worked on "This Old House" until the wee hours nearly every evening after working on my regular daytime job.

One Saturday while slaving away on the new kitchen, the nice man from whom we had bought the house came by to see how we were doing. He was so amazed at the progress we had already made that he handed me a $50 bill and said, "Put water in the faucets." The water supply was from a hand pump on a community well some distance away.

So, while all our buddies were out having a good time spending their money, we were busy spending our time and money on our "Dream House."

We completed remodeling the old house all except for "water in the faucets," and lived in it for a short time before I had to go off to the Army Air Corp. We rented the place out all that time for $30 per month, which more than paid the payments.

By the time I got discharged from the service, the house had paid for itself and we sold it for $3500. The profit over and above what we had invested was terrific (five times the purchase price). Try getting that percent of profit now-a-days!

Best of all, we had made our "Old House" into "Our Own Home."

Senator Pete Wilson urges joint management of Continental Shelf

Faulting the Interior department's record of unsatisfactory support for protecting the environment, California Senator Pete Wilson today called for hearings to examine the possibility of expanding management of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) to also include the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Safeguarding the environment has taken a back seat to the development of our natural resources at the Interior Department," Wilson said.

"A proper balance between development and preservation would be assured by directly involving EPA in the administration of the Outer Continental Shelf," Wilson said.

To this end, Wilson today called for hearings to examine the Interior Department's abysmal record of support for environmental concerns when faced with the dual responsibility of expeditiously developing the nation's marine mineral resources.

"According to the National Research Council, the Interior Department has failed to gather sufficient information to make an informed judgement on the ecological impact of OCS drilling off California's coast," Wilson said.

"Still, absent this crucial data, the agency has steadfastly and tenaciously attempted to develop oil and gas reserves located along coastal areas," Wilson said

Wilson said he did not believe it was a stated policy of the Interior Department to emphasize energy production at the expense of the environment.

"It appears the Department is unable to reconcile the dual responsibilities of developing our natural resources with protecting the environment," Wilson said.

The problem is not unlike that faced earlier this year when President Bush announced the creation of the cabinet level task force to review OCS development off the coasts of California and Florida.

Initially, the President only included on the panel representatives from the Interior Department, Energy Department and the National Academy of Sciences. Later, the EPA was added in order to balance the structural bias of the task force.

"Just as the President determined the EPA should necessarily be part of the task force charged with the review of OCS development, I believe EPA should be included in the day-to-day management of the OCS," Wilson said.

"Only by allowing EPA to share in the stewardship of the OCS Areas can the public be assured protecting the environment will receive equal treatment with the need for exploiting our natural resources," Wilson said.

The OCS Lands Act Amendments of 1978 (OCSLAA) require the Interior Department to take into account the potential environmental impact when assessing OCS areas for leasing and development.

At the same time, the Department is charged with developing marine mineral resources to meet the nation's energy demands.

Faith Chapel to present Christmas classics

A forest of 40 living Christmas trees and carolers on a foggy, snowing night create the setting for Faith Chapel's Christmas Festival. Handbells under the direction of Ruby Styler will ring in the season of celebration. The choir and orchestra is directed by Rick Uhles, and the drama by Stephanie Banker.

This concert of the 'Classic Carols of Christmas' will be presented at Faith Chapel, 9400 Campo Road in Casa de Oro. The three free performances will be Saturday, December 16, at 7:00 p.m., and Sunday, December 17, at 5:00 and 7:30 p.m.

A 1988 graduate of Mount Miguel High School, he joined the Marine Corps in January 1989.

Local agencies team up for San Felipe emergency equipment Christmas benefit

What do fire hoses, Poway Sheriff's Station deputies and San Felipe have in common? Up until about a month ago, there was no common link. However, in late September, nine Sheriff's deputies and detectives and one civilian took a short vacation with our neighbors to the south.

Prior to their departure, they contacted the Poway Fire Department and obtained good used fire equipment, emergency medical supplies and other emergency equipment to donate to the City of San Felipe.

San Felipe's Chief of Police, Fire Chief and Mayor thanked the deputies by providing dinner for them. During the course of the evening's conversation, the deputies discovered that not only was the city lacking in emergency supplies and equipment, but they had no patrol vehicles for the area. Police officers were fighting crime and providing services to the community using their own personal vehicles, and emergency communications were handled through the use of private CB radios or phoning in for messages.

Upon their return to the United States, the deputies began a "Christmas Relief" project for the San Felipe Police Department and citizens. A used San Diego Police Department patrol car has been reserved on layaway, and plans have been made for painting, installing lights/sirens and obtaining a used CB radio from the Sheriff's evidence unit.

Members of the Poway, Lemon Grove and Santee Sheriff's Stations, Las Colinas Men's and Women's Detention Facilities and Poway Fire Department have combined efforts to provide emergency equipment and Christmas supplies to residents of the San Felipe area.

"Las Vegas Night," an entertaining evening of games, food and prizes is being planned for Saturday, December 2, 1989, from 7:00 p.m. to midnight. The event will be held at the Poway Community Center, 13094 Bowron Road. Tickets can be obtained in advance from the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station, 3240 Main Street, Lemon Grove, Lisa Miller, 441-4100.

A donation of $10.00 will provide the participant with two drinks and $5.00 in chips, which can be used for raffle prizes at the end of the evening.

Additional fund-raisers are being planned, with the ultimate goal of providing necessary emergency equipment and Christmas gifts tot he residents of the San Felipe area. Donations of canned foods, good used clothing and toys, and cash (in check form only) are being accepted for this worthwhile project.

Checks can be made out to the "Sheriff's Christmas Charity Fund," and all items can be left in care of Lisa Miller at the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station.

Breakfast with Santa at Senior Center scheduled

On Saturday, December 16, all children and their parents are invited to attend the Lemon Grove Recreation Department's Breakfast with Santa to be held at the Lemon Grove Senior Center located at 8235 Mt. Vernon Avenue. Seatings will be offered from 8:00 - 9:00 am. and 9:30-10:30 a.m. Breakfast, entertainment and a candy cane from Santa will be provided at a cost of $2.50 for children under 10 years of age and $3.50 for adults. Tickets are available at the Lemon Grove Recreation Center, 3131 School Lane. For information, call 464-1630.

Congregational Church to hold holiday dinner, auction Saturday

Food, fun and first-class bargains will all be on tap Saturday evening at Lemon Grove Congregational United Church of Christ, 2770 Glebe Rd.

The festivities begin with a dinner featuring home made lasagna, salad bar, rolls, dessert and beverages. Serving will be continuous from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

A "Christmas Auction" – a wide range of gift items (including hostess baskets, household items, gifts for children and entertainment packages) and some collectibles and curiosities (even a neon Schlitz beer sign!)--rounds out the evening. Auctioneer and Lemon Grove Councilwoman Lois Heiserman will gavel the bidding to order at 7 p.m.

An auction catalogue and an opportunity to preview items to be offered for bid will be available during the dinner. In addition, there will be a lounge with complimentary beverages for those who choose to eat early and wish to stay for the auction. There will also be a baked goods sale.

Dinner prices are $5.50 for adults, $3.50 for children 7 to 12 and $2.50 for children 3 to 7, with children under 3 admitted free. There will be no charge for the auction. People are welcome to come to the auction who do not come to the dinner.

The inclusion of numerous items for "children only" bidding underscores the fact that the entire event is planned to maximize the interest, enjoyment and entertainment of all.

Woman's Club meeting planned

Lemon Grove Woman's Club will meet of Friday Dec. 8 at.1:30 p.m. in the Sunshine Hall. President Dorothy Smith will conduct the meeting. Members are to bring large cans of peaches for the Carol Christmas dinner to help feed the hungry. The club has made monetary donations to the Salvation Army, Life Ministries and several other charitable organizations. The Mt. Helix High School Choralers will sing Christmas songs for the club's program followed by the Vogue Evening Section hostessing the refreshments. This is an annual event for the Vogues.

Vogue Evening Section will meet on Monday Dec. 18 at 6:30 p.m. at Heidi's Restaurant in Lemon Grove for their Christmas dinner and gift exchange.

Holiday tradition, 'The Nutcracker,' to open run at East County Performing Arts Center

San Diego's popular Christmas fantasy, "The Nutcracker," opens December 8 at East County Performing Arts Center in El Cajon and runs through December 10.

It then moves to San Diego Civic Theatre where it will be presented December 15-24 with live orchestra.

Stars for this year's production are Otto Neubert, Mark Lanham, Denise Dabrowski, Karen Evans, Patrick Nollet and Sylvia Poolos. They will be joined by C.B.C. corps dancers and apprentices, actors and ballet students from California Ballet Schools and some other area studios.

Otto Neubert returns to perform the role of the Cavalier and Snow King. Now a freelance dancer, he has been a soloist with Stuttgart Ballet and New York City Ballet.

Mark Lanham, a freelance dancer/instructor out of Utah, will share the starring male role of Cavalier.

Winner of California Ballet Association's first Award of Merit, ballerina Denise Dabrowski will dazzle audiences as the Sugar Plum Fairy and Snow Queen. San Diego Union arts critic Anne Marie Welsh noted Dabrowski as "always intelligently attuned to matters musical and stylistic."

Ballerina Karen Evans also cited for her effectiveness in recent roles, will alternate with Dabrowski in the starring ballerina roles.

Sylvia Poolos, noted for her impressive account of the virtuoso Bluebird duet in a September performance, will have her turn as the Sugar Plum Fairy. C.B.C. principal dancer and 1989 Dancer of the year Patrick Nollet will demonstrate his expertise in Act I as the toy maker, Herr Drosselmeyer.

The original version of "The Nutcracker" was produced by the Russian Imperial Ballet in 1892. The famous French Choreographer Petipa worked closely with the composer Tchaikovsky on the score, describing exactly what he wanted , measure for measure.

The first presentation of "The Nutcracker" in the United States was by the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in 1940. Restaged with choreography by George Balanchine, it was performed by the New York City Ballet in 1954, a production that became the prototype for many American versions presented today.

California Ballet Company director Maxine Mahon has added her own choreography to strengthen the story line and to appeal to the childlike nature in audiences of all ages.

"I created Clara as a older child, a pre-teen who is beginning to daydream about love," explains Mahon. Drosselmeyer's nephew is presented as the object of Clara's interest. When she dreams, he becomes the Nutcracker Prince.

The Prince then escorts Clara through the Snow Kingdom and the Kingdom of Sweets. Like the great Maryinski Theatre, Leningrad Ballet and George Balanchine, Mahon believes that children should play children's roles. She presents the Kingdom of Sweets as having many confections, putting artistic life into fanciful, childish dreams.

"I think 'The Nutcracker' concerns childhood," Mahon reflects. "It celebrates the power of human imagination which children have in abundance. To make it sophisticated steals the charm: it posesses the power to make people happy at Christmas."

One of the special features of matinee performances is the Sugar Plum Parties. Refreshments are served, Santa comes for a visit and there are photo opportunities with members of the cast.

This is the 19th year for C.B.C. to present "The Nutcracker" for San Diego Audiences. C.B.C. is a non-profit organization dedicated to presenting a full season of ballet productions to San Diego audiences each year and to maintaining a forum for local, professional dancers.

Tickets for "The Nutcracker" may be reserved by phone 278-TIXS or 560-6741.

C.B.C. also promotes year-round sponsorship of ballet through membership in the California Ballet Association. Information is available in by calling 560-5676 or writing California Ballet Centre, 8276 Ronson Rd., San Diego, CA 92111.

Lemon Grove Historical Society to meet December 7

The monthly meeting of the Lemon Grove Historical Society will be held December 7th, 1:30 p.m. in the community room at the Lemon Grove Library, 8073 Broadway.

After the usual business meeting, Pearl Harbor survivor and long time Lemon Grove resident, Joe Young, will talk of his experiences aboard the mine sweeper "Condor". His narrative of that day of infamy should prove quite interesting especially on this day, its 48th anniversary.

After Mr. Young's presentation refreshments will be served. Members and others interested are welcome to attend.

On December 14th, members of the Historical Society will be touring Old Town via our local and Molley Trolley systems. Cost of this tour will be $10.00 each, plus MTB fare ($.50 for seniors).

If you are interested please call The Society's vice-president: Pete Smith at 463-7292. Details are still being worked out and seating is limited.

This course is sponsored by the East San Diego community College.

Natural History Museum organizing whale watching trips during December and January

The San Diego Natural History Museum extends an invitation to the public to view the gray whales on their annual migration south to breeding areas in the lagoons of Baja California.

The Museum is offering 13 two-hour boat trips from Dec. 22-Jan. 27 aboard the 85 foot vessel, New Seaforth.

The first trip scheduled for Dec. 22, entitled the Gilmore Memorial Whale Watching Trip, is open to museum members only and is dedicated the memory of Raymond M. Gilmore, research associate in the Museum's Marine Mammal Department from 1955-1972.

Subsequent trips for members and nonmembers are scheduled for Dec. 30, Jan. 6, Jan. 13, Jan. 14, Jan. 20, and Jan. 27. Two trips are set for each day, one leaving at 11:30 a.m. and the other at 2:00 p.m.

"These trips offer a unique opportunity to see 35-foot gray whales up close and to learn about their history and behavior from marine biologists", said Lynn Mitchell, Public Relations Director at the Museum.

"We urge whale watchers to make their reservations as soon as possible since the trips fill up fast".

According to Mitchell the gray whales make a round-trip journey of 10,000 miles annually from the Bering Strait to Baja California.

Cost for museum members is $10 for adults and $8 for children under the age of 12. For nonmembers the fee is $12 for adults and $10 for children.

Hunted to near-extinction in the late nineteenth century and again in 1932, gray whales have increased in number from a decimated population of 3,000 to more than 21,000.

Reservations can be made by calling the Museum at 232-3821.

New technique of tooth whitening presented

Doctors Masek and Carrillo of La Mesa, Hellwig and Gietzen of El Cajon and Dr. Ippolito of East San Diego are among over 20 dentists throughout San Diego County launching an informational campaign about "cosmetic dentistry" and tooth whitening.

Participating dentists offer the phone number "1-800-67 SMILE" to individuals desiring general information or a free loaner video about the process.

White and Brite, a product from Omnii International, is a departure from the typical bleaching and bonding techniques previously employed in dentistry. The product's oxidizing agent eliminates the yellows, browns and grays that stain discolored teeth through coffee, tea, tobacco, tetracycline and fluoride.

Omnii International, a subsidiary of 25-year-old Dunhall Pharmaceuticals, says that the White and Brite process generally takes a few weeks to accomplish. A unique facet of this product is that much of the treatment can be accomplished at home by the patient. According to an Omnii representative, the procedure is painless and in most instances, the expense is at least one fourth the cost of other types of conventional cosmetic dentistry for tooth whitening.

The group effort was implemented by local ad agency Wilson, Frank and Associates.

Hispanic blood drive Saturday

San Diego County's Hispanic Chamber of Commerce will sponsor its first-ever "El Milagro de Vida" (The Miracle of Life) Blood Drive with the San Diego Blood Bank from Saturday, December 2 to Saturday, December 9 at all San Diego Blood Bank locations.

All blood donors who give during "El Milagro de Vida" Blood Drive will receive a San Diego Blood Bank t-shirt. Donors may give at the San Diego Blood Bank, 440 Upas Street, near downtown San Diego. For additional information, please contact the community Relations Department of the San Diego Blood Bank at 296-6393.

SDG&E offers suggestions for reducing winter bills

If you haven't done it lately, it may be time to replace that furnace filter or vacuum around that dusty wall heater.

Keeping your heating equipment clean will help hold down your winter heating bill, according to San Diego Gas & Electric (SDG&E).

"Your heating system will get quite a workout during cold weather," says Connie Ward, energy services specialist. Heavy heating demands are the leading cause of higher energy bills during the winter months.

Forced air furnaces use more energy to warm your home if you don't change the filter regularly.

"The more energy your heater needs, the higher your energy bill, especially during the cold weather we are starting to experience," said Ward.

"In addition, a dirty wall furnace can be a potential safety problem. A once-a-month vacuuming will keep things in ship shape."

Consumers can reduce their energy bills also by following some of these handy tips:

• Every 2-degree increase on your thermostat adds about 5 percent to your heating bill, so set the thermostat at 68 degrees during the day, and lower it to 55 degrees at night. Better yet, shut it off while you sleep, and use extra blankets—it's cheaper than heating the whole house.

• If you have natural gas heating, turn off the thermostat when you leave the house for more than a few hours.

• If you have electric heat and no "off" setting on your thermostat, turn off the heat at the circuit breaker. This keeps a faulty thermostat from operating the system when you don't need it.

• Keep doors and windows closed, and drapes drawn at night or on cloudy days, to prevent heat loss. During sunny days, let the light in for some free solar heating.

• If you spend most of your time in one room, heat it with a portable electric heater instead of your central heating system.

• A furnace is more economical than your fireplace for home heating. Keep the fireplace damper closed when not in use.

• Unless you need that second refrigerator for holiday storage, unplug it. It can cost you $15 per month, or more, depending on its size.

• When cooking or baking, remember: pre-heating is out, except for breads and cakes; use pan covers for quicker cooking; keep that oven door closed, and use a microwave oven whenever possible.

• Wash laundry by full loads if possible, and keep the lint filter on the dryer clean.

• Use an insulation blanket on the water heater and save up to 9 percent of your water heating costs.

• Replace incandescent bulbs with fluorescent fixtures where practical. Fluorescent lighting costs less to use and lasts longer.

• Use a dimmer switch to cut energy use particularly with incandescent bulbs.

• Use light-colored lamp shades to let more of the light out.

• Turn off the lights when leaving a room for more than a few minutes.

You can learn more about cutting your winter heating costs by calling (619) 239-SDGE, or your local heating contractor.

Helix workers return from quake relief

"After seeing what I saw up there, if someone told me that 10,00 people died in that quake, I would have believed it,' said J.D. Adams, a member of the returning three-man crew sent north by the Helix Water District to repair water pipes damaged by the October earthquake. When the crew arrived, the Villa del Monte Mutual Water District, serving an area south of Los Gatos, was unable to provide water to any of its customers.

When they left, service was restored to about 50 percent of the District. The Helix crew, consisting of Adams, Larry Austin and Willie Ontiveros (Ontiveros was later replaced by Bill Blessinger), spent nine days climbing through rough terrain, poison oak, and down steep canyons.

First, the pipe that pumped water up from the creek to the reservoir was repaired. Then, the distribution pipes, many completely plugged with mud, had to be cleaned, checked for leak locations and fixed. Don MacKenzie, supervisor of the Villa del Monte Mutual Water District, said, "They fixed 25-30 leaks on the pump line and at least 70-80 more on the distribution pipes. I just pointed in the direction of the work and they dug in without supervision."

Adams said, "We worked long hours--from dawn to dusk. Then sometimes we'd set up a generator to give us light so we could finish a job we were working on. The people welcomed us with open arms. One lady even baked us a carrot cake."

MacKenzie praised the Helix team extensively saying, "They were well-equipped, worked well as a team, had a positive attitude, and were fun as hell to take out dancing." Full water service is expected to be restored within two weeks.

Living near the epicenter of the earthquake, MacKenzie described its force "like being on the back of a pickup truck going over chuckholes while the driver steps on the gas, then slams on the brakes." Villa del Monte is the site of an ancient landslide about one-half mile wide and one mile long. The homes and water district office, located in the slide area, slid down the hill an average of three feet due to the earthquake. Damage to the roads and underground pipes was extensive.

As an earthquake survivor, MacKenzie had some advice for those who live near major faults, "Think of your house as a sailboat. Build edges or your shelves and table. Tie down everything big. My refrigerator, double oven and grand piano all crashed over. The house can stay structurally intact, but the inside can be a complete mess."

Cox Cable honored by governor's committee

Cox Cable San Diego has been honored by the California Governor's Committee for Employment of Disabled Persons for cablecasting and financially supporting public access programming which positively portrays handicapped people.

Cox was honored for outstanding contribution by a corporation at an elaborate banquet in Los Angeles in cooperation with the Governor's Office and the Media Access Office, and L.A-based organization which promotes the use of disabled people in the media. Competition for the awards was open to media organizations worldwide.

Cox Cable's Senior Vice President and General Manager, Robert G. McRann, who said he was "absolutely thrilled" with the honor said that Cox won for its coverage of the NFL Ski Race for the Disabled and its practice of producing public service announcements, aired by the company and local broadcasters on behalf of groups representing the physically challenged.

According to R. David Smith, producer of the winning program and Cox Cable's public access coordinator, Cox covered the ski race for the first time last year. A charitable event originating from the Purgatory, Colorado, ski area it features an NFL star, two able-bodied skiers and one physically challenged skier per team in competition.

Smith added that the cable system also participated in sponsorship of the La Jolla Arts Festival to raise funds to send a disabled skier to the race. The system hopes to cover the event again next year, he said.

Smith, who is missing his left arm below the elbow, also represents the cable company at 25 to 30 lectures a year he gives in local schools, teaching students etiquette in dealing with the handicapped.

He added that members of the Performing Arts Theater for the Disabled work in the company's public access programs.

Cox's work was submitted for recognition by local activists and Smith said the cable employees were surprised by the honor. "We thought it would go to someone from L.A.," he said.

Grove Meandering

By Fran Rottet

Seen out and about on crutches recently is Lemon Grove resident, Dorothy Lambert. Dorothy is having trouble with a hip and doctor put her on crutches for the time being. She is waiting for test results and by the time this is in print she may have them and know how long the crutches will be with her. Take care, Dorothy!

Have you heard? The Community Center is scheduled to close on January 1, for renovation. According to the Recreation Department, the "recreation room" will be converted to office space and the main hall will be the only room available for community use.

Scheduling may be a bit of a problem during the renovation, but the Recreation Center will do everything possible to keep scheduling smooth for the groups that use the building.

Saturday, December 2, is the day for the Christmas Auction at Lemon Grove United Church of Christ. A bit of "sleuthing" gave me the additional news that Councilwoman Lois Heiserman will be the auctioneer for this event. The auction begins at 7:00 p.m. As reported last week, a dinner ($5.50/adults; $3.50/children) will be served prior to the auction. However, you don't have to buy a dinner ticket to participate in the auction. Why not plan to stop by. It'll be fun.

Saturday, December 2, is also the date for the VFW Post 2082 Christmas Bazaar, at 2855 Lemon Grove Avenue, in the lounge. You might want to make this a "stop" during your daily schedule. You're bound to find something special for that special someone on your gift list.

Check out Broadway -- the new Carpet and Drapery store is now open (at the old Grove Office Supply location). And flags announce the arrival of an antique (?) store a bit farther west. I must confess, I haven't visited the antique store, but from the sidewalk it looks like a very nice inventory of antiques.

Tree Towne (Crocker Bank Building) is decked out for Christmas and another location farther west was seen preparing to display trees.

The merriment of the holiday season can be seen all over the area. I, for one, have a problem with such early arrival of the holiday gift displays (many as early as July). By the time the spirit of the season has me in it's grip, "holiday clearance sales" have reduced selection to "maybe you'll find it and maybe you won't". If you got your shopping done early, good for you. If you wait, like I do, good luck!

If you have news items for the Lemon Grove Review, questions or concerns within the community, or need information, call me at 464-4274 between noon and 3 p.m., Tuesday through Friday. I'll try to help or find someone who can.

Trout to be planted at lake

Lake Jennings, located five miles east of El Cajon, has been a popular fishing spot with anglers since it opened in 1965. It is owned and operated as a water storage reservoir by the Helix Water District. Always popular for catfish, large mouth bass, blue gill and red ear sunfish as well as stocked trout, Lake Jennings has a fishing pier with handicap access as well as boat access.

Recently a group of lake users requested Helix to occasionally stock trout during the summer months as well as the usual October through May. Six thousand pounds of catfish is also planted bi-weekly from June to September. Lake supervisor Bob Rivera has charted the water temperatures and trout catches over the past several years. The charts show that as water temperatures increase, the survival rate of planted trout decreases. With water temperatures over 72 degrees, only six trout were caught by anglers out of 1,200 pounds planted.

After careful consideration, the Board of Directors decided that when the water temperature drops below 72 degrees, trout plants could be considered. That will most likely be towards the end of September of early October. At the present time, 1,200 pounds of trout from Whitewater Trout Hatchery from the mountains near Indio costs the District approximately $2,400. The Helix Water District operates the lake on a non-profit basis. Fishing fees pay for the fish planted and for maintenance of the lake facility.

Apartment complex promotes healthy living among residents

Health and fitness have become major concerns in the United States and people have begun to experiment with alternative and healthier lifestyles.

There has been a popular movement away from America's traditional meat and potato diet towards more natural foods that take into account the old saying, "you are what you eat."

A Lemon Grove Apartment complex, recognizing this trend, has become a haven for vegetarians. Vegetarian Village, located on Casa St., is one of the first if not only, apartment complexes oriented towards vegetarian living. The complex's manager, Diane Gallina, said Vegetarian Village offers unique services especially for vegetarians.

"There is an organic garden, a non-chlorine pool, wheat grass sprouting facilities, a juicer and an onsight educator to help with a vegetarian-diet maintenance program."

Gallina said the image of vegetarians is changing, "We're not hippies anymore. The people who live here want to live healthier lives and a lot of them are people from Los Angeles who want to get away from the busy city."

Presently, about 50 percent of the units in Vegetarian Village are occupied by vegetarians. "We don't turn anyone away who isn't a vegetarian, but eventually we hope the whole complex will be vegetarian," said Gallina.

Vegetarian Village is owned by the Optimum Health Institute of San Diego and many of its tenants learned about vegetarianism from the institute, said Gallina. "The diet is a lot stricter at the institute, but the village does serve as a support group."

Mt. Miguel El Trovador News Briefs

Mount Miguel has been nominated as a 1990 California Distinguished School because of the staff and students whose commitment to excellence has resulted in this recognition.

The selection is based upon performance on the 1989 California Assessment Program test scores and success in achieving quality indicator targets as reported in the California Report for California Schools.

Tracye Parker, Alexea Ringo and Alison Hoffarth took first, second and third places, respectively, at the county-wide speech contest held at San Diego State University on November 18th. This event focused on the forensic events.

Mt. Miguel Varsity Basketball will be opening the '89-90 season vs. Central High School on December 5th, at Mt. Miguel, 5:30 p.m. Players to watch for are Shannon Le Fever, Domingo Rivera, Travis Beale and "Big" 6'7" Kenny Moore.

The Mt. Miguel Marching Matadors were one out of 24 Southern California High School bands chosen to compete in the Tournament of Champions in Santa Ana on December 2nd. After the tournament, the band will march in the Orange County Holiday Parade.

The Mount Miguel music department will be holding a Winter Concert on Wednesday, December 13th. The performance features singers and musicians. The concert will begin at 7:00 p.m. and there is no charge.

The United Way/CHAD campaign coordinated by Yolanda Lopez at Mount Miguel achieved a total of $3,547 in donations from the staff.

The special education department took honors for the highest percentage per person contribution and will enjoy a pizza lunch donated by Leone's Italian Restaurant in Lemon Grove.

The Mount Miguel Matadors Wrestling team will be participating in its first Wrestling Tournament in Carlsbad on Saturday, December 2nd. Both Varsity and Junior Varsity will be competing.

Students born on or before December 14, 1974, wishing to take Drivers Education in the spring, will be able to pick up forms after December 4.

The class runs for 15 weeks. Interested students can get further information in the counseling office.

Boys soccer revs up with the season opener, a home game Friday against St. Augustine at 3:30 p.m.

Returning players are Jeff Even, Mike Kohler, Ricky Ramirez, Jose Rael, Keith Vann, Steve Godwin, Phil Quici, Mark Gonzales, Robbie Peterson, Andrew Bregman, Matt Berry and goal keeper, John Wadley.

Mount Miguel's Cross Country runners, Gary Lawrence, Greg Raymond and David Gilbert, will be competing in the Kinney Cross Country Championships; Western Regional. The meet will be held in Fresno this Saturday, December 2nd.

Just in time for Christmas, Mt. Miguel's R.O.P. plastics class will be selling toolboxes. Each of the durable toolboxes has a lift out plastic tray with four sections, comes in a variety of colors and is made of plastic and aluminum. Toolboxes will be sold for $20.00.

Classified staff changes: Judith Lobb has joined Mount Miguel as the new Program Clerk, having taken over for Betty Poor who retired at the end of October.

In the counseling department, Jackie Thompson is the new Counseling Secretary, replacing Pat Moore, and Darlene Manning has left Mount Miguel to take the position of Attendence Clerk at Grossmont High School.

Climbers to take peace messages to mountain top

Looking for a great gift-giving suggestions for the upcoming holiday season? Consider sending a message of peace and hope from the top of the world with the Mount Everest Earth Day 20 International Peace Climb.

The landmark expedition led by Jim Whittaker--the first American to climb to the top of Mt. Everest--hopes to place a team of one climber each from the United States, the Soviet Union and China on the summit of Mt. Everest on the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, April 22, 1990, demonstrating that through cooperation and trust, the greatest obstacles can be overcome.

All peace messages, which can be in the form of words, photos or drawings, will be recorded on a CD ROM disc and carried by the climbers to the world's highest peak, the 29,028-foot summit of Everest. After the team descends, the messages will be printed out and sent to world leaders.

The climbers, like the expedition's major sponsor and outfitter, L.L. Bean, are committed to a cleaner Earth as well as a more peaceful one. They have pledged to clean up the decades of gear and debris left by previous expeditions.

Official Everest Peace Climb T-shirts are another way for the public to both support the Peace Climb and solve gift problems. The T-shirts from L.L. Bean feature the Climb logo in vibrant red, blue, yellow and green and the word "Peace" in English, Russian and Chinese. A donation of $2 on each T-shirt purchase will be made by Bean to the Peace Climb. Expedition leader Jim Whittaker says, "To support the Peace Climb with either a T-shirt or a message of peace is to choose a gift that is in the true spirit of the season. All of us participating in this Peace Climb hope that people from all over the world will send peace messages themselves or as gifts for loved ones."

To send a peace message to the top of the world, mail the message with a minimum donation of $5 to Mt. Everest Peace Climb, 221 Middlepoint Road, Port Townsend, WA 98368 by March 31, 1990.

All contributions are tax-deductible. To order a Peace Climb T-shirt call L.L. Bean toll free at 1-800-221-4221.
